

Automation as a Service - Assessment

One of the biggest challenges facing manufacturers today - staffing. Whether it's finding and retaining the right people for their workforce or having to make due with less, manufacturers are struggling to retain the headcount necessary to keep up with daily operations, let alone, plan for future growth.

Avanceon IAAS is a Service Level Agreement that provides consistent level of engineering services necessary to innovate new or improved solutions, maintain and upgrade relevant technology, and build process efficiency and reliability on an ongoing basis.

It's focus is to provide single-cost, value-added services for upgrading, maintaining, and improving customer systems and training customers to operate them.
